the thousand. Horror and incredibility and revenge shown upon every countenance.
Men walled the streets allustly; gathered in knots and meaningly discussed the terrible fight and its consequences. An eager group was gathered in the telegraph office during the afternoon of Monday, while the dread news was being received over the wires. And immediately the slips were read, away the word west, over the camp and town, like with fire.
Some of the Colonels told their roldlers the whole story at creaming parada. The mean of the 10th Regiment, not one of whom has yet re-volunteemed for the way, were differented by Col. Morgan, and circumstantiality informed of the rout. They were then asked by their Colonel If, in case they were icomorrow ordered to Washington, they would go. A terrific "Tra" was the answer; and you may depend upon it the boys of the 10th second

Culchell David Hunter, recently appointed to the command of the Third Regiment of Cavalry, led the Third Division of General McDowell's army. He was first said to be mortally wounded, but will recover. He was born in Washington, and entered the Academy at West Point in 1818, graduating in 1828. He was made explain of the First Desgroos in 1838, and resigned in 1838, removing them to Chicago, where he married Miss Kinsia, daughter of the former Indian agent at that place, in 1838, be was appointed paymaster, and he has been in that degratinent ever since, until lately. There are few finer officers in the army than Col Hunter. His wife, who is a lady of great strength of character, has been with him in all his service, and was the only lady that accompanied the army of Gen. Wool in the leave march in Music.

Mons Fun Zouavas.—The past members of the Boston Fire Department are organizing several companies of Zonaves, which they hope to be able to make a full regiment, on the Elisworth model. Two of the original Chicago Zouaves, (cames not mentioned.) are active lessers in the movement, and are en-dorsed by the officers of the Fire Department.

First Blackmunits.—I esterday we received amples of large and inscious blackberries from Mr. Benjamin, No. 88 Bandolph street, raised at the Union Garden, Rich River. They are called Benjamin's Seedlings. There is a double pleasure in such fruit, the pleasure of eating it, and the constituents that liberal measures, (dry measures, let us hope), are being taken to supply our market with it.

His patriotism is a positive quantity, and has several times before yesteriay taken the substantial form of a free inneh to an entire regiment. He cardiacs of the Geyerament. There is an Ayer for you. He is a perfect atmosphere of liberality, good feed, and good patriotism.

AN ANIANIA SIR.—A young lady (heaven save the mark), who from her appearance might be supposed to belong to F. F. a C. (first families of Chicago), was yesterday heard to declare within the heating of a number of the employees in a Lake street store, that she wished herself in some comfortable situation there at the seat of war, with the opportunity of "picking out the hearts of those Federal to the complex of the seat of MESSER HALPIN & BAILEY'S CHICAGO DIMINSTORE.—The Chicago City Directory for 1800-62 has just been published by Halpin & Bailey. Buildes containing all the names of citizens, it also has a carefully classified business register and street and avenue directory. This directory, like its predocessors, is gotten up in good style, and remarkably accurate. In the City Directory for 1800, there were 28, 284 names. Allowing to each family an average of four persons, the population was 113,696. In the new Directory there are 20,839 names, being an increase of 2,664 over last year, or an increase in the actual population of 16,656, and making the fair total population of Chicago at present about 120,000.

The reception at seasons in limited was the thurselt cand of a character to show that the heart of the people goes out with the brave defenders of the Government.

Their transit through this city was a magnificent ovation, which, from the brief notice given, lacked everything formal, but was generous, spontaneous and memorable. The streets along their line of march were througed with citizens of all classes and both sexes. Hats, handkerchieth and white hands waved by thousands, amid tumultous cheering, as the regiment moved on.

They embarked on the Michigan Southern Railroad train, and at 8 P. M. were speeding eastward. They go by Cieveland and Pitts burgh to Harrisburgh, are there armed, and go down the Northern Central Railroad to Baltimore and Washington.

There is getting to be a too uniform procitice among a certain class of those who provide uniforms. The clothing they ture use is most uniformly poor, and their system of the council in uniformly processed and outvigeous. Yeslerday as noticed in another column, the 6th Wisconath Regiment passed through this city, en route for the seal of war. They were a fine looking body of men, a credit to our sister State. It is said by our reporter that they go on their war errand with high courage, and jeyously. Surely it would have been but simple justice to the brave fellows to have seen and sent them well clad. Wisconath had been surely in the secondary our copying of this notice with the names of the acoundrel contractors:

A considerable number of the three menths' men are re-enlisting for the war before fearing their camps. They get a furiough after being sworn in for three Years, and come home to relative friends.

years, and come home to visit their friends and settle up their personal affairs, which were left in a loose condition when they obeyed the first call for volunteers with such extraordinary alacrity and rushed to the rescue of their country's fing.

But a large majority of the three months' towns, and observing the great scarcity of employment, nine-tenths of them will go back to the wars. After their maney and froit are out, they will long for the excitement of the camp. And if the prospect of getting into active service is flattering, very few of the "three-monthers" will settle down to the quiet of private life in dull times.

One good result will follow from the dishanding of the short term regiments, One good result will follow from the disbanding of the short term regiments, which is, that drunken, incompetent or unpopular officers, will be got rid of. Their worthlessness having been discovered, the beys will give them a wide berth when they come to fill up new regiments for the duratice of the war. However fond the privates may be of a ghas of grog, they have sense enough to know that whiskey drinking is a wretched accomplianment in an officer, and one that may sacrifice the life of the soldier whenever there is fighting to be done. The reorganization of the regiments will weed out the topers. The return of the three months' soldiers will revive themilitary spirit, as they will very soon commence getting up companies and regiments to fight the rebaining they are completely coerced and subjugated. We may look for a breaking out again of martial future in Chicago, and all over the West under the double influence of the stirring war news and the returned the stirring war news and the returned tatement of the affair:

The battle commenced on Sunday mornat Aquia creek, the terminus of the Richmond and Potomac road—in the line of direct communication with the Virginia with the virginia in Capital, distant 75 miles, where there were reported to be eight to tweive thousand troops in a state of disorganization. The vote on the question of secession had not yet been taken in Virginia. Jeff. Davis divided the batteries at Bull's Run having been taken, and the enemy pushed back towards Manassas. From this point of time the rebela, by some means yet unknown, repulsed our columns, recovered their ground and drove Gen. McDowell back through Centreville, Fairfax, and on to the starting point of Arfington Heights. The rebels, however, did not fallow their advantage, nor come anywhere near the fortifications on the Potomac. It is refreshing to know that Gen. Patterson was all this while at Harper's Ferry. The number of killed ing at five or six o'clock-the rebels hav-offered and others hastening to the scene of conflict.

That two hestile nations cannot exist on this continent—the one holding the mouth and the other the sources of the Mississippi—is being every day more fully demonstrated, and never did the great fact come more torcibly to the minds of the people then yesterday. If we could possibly make peace to-day, it would be only to fight the harder next month or next year, and surely we shall never again be in such a mood for fighting as new. So, let the energies of the country be mustocad in their greatest strength. Let the eigements which have been imploring for acceptance these many months, be armed and mustered and sent forward to the places where they have desired to be. Let vast camps of instruction be organized forthwith. And above all, let educated and competent officers be appointed to command our soldiers. Ambitious politicians, who would hold themselves unqualified to define the elements of the comet without astronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without stronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without stronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without stronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without stronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without stronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without stronomical training and preparation of the condition and preparation shall feel under obligations to friend-marters who will aid in renewing criptions of those whose time is and will not object to their get-e new subscribers. tronomical training, may well decline to lead thousands of men into battle without It has been known to many persons in this the first principles of military science. ity that Mr. Wentworth has for some time Such resources of men, money and mecontemplated retiring from editorial chanism as the loyal States possess must and shall prevail.

Laying aside all that may be said in re-gard to the condition and preparation of the army which Gen. McDowell commanded, to meet the rebel forces under Beaure gard, this much may be safely assumed t be true: that the immediate cause of the defeat was the failure of Gen. Patterson to co-operate with McDowell. Had he obeyed Gen. Scott's instructions, "to engage Jehnston's division at whatever odds," to vent his junction with the army at Mana-sas, and if he effected such junction, to then attack oim on the flank at the same moment that McDowell fought the rebels in front;—we repeat, had this been done, the result of the battle would have been

McClellan or Lyon had been in command of Patterson's division of 30,000 men, does any one believe that he would have allowed Jehnston to join he would have allowed Jehnston to join Beauregard? Would he not have routed that rebel column, and cut off its retreat through Manassas Gap, and pursued its flying fragments down the Shenandoah Valley? Single-handed, McDowell's army had

THE ABST WORM.

The first account that we have of this worm came from this county of Perry, as far back as 1836, when it was very destructive. It reappeared at mequal periods in 1835, 26, 26, 28, 18, and 39, since then it has attracted no particular attention. There can be no doubt that it appears annually, but that from the abundance of its enemies among the ichemous and birds it is kept within bounds; but occasionally in the absence of these, it swarms in carful numbers. In April for two or three days the air was filled with millers, which have since been proved to be the moth of this worm. These must have laid their eggs by the million at the bace of the cultivated grasses, from whence the grand army, after having destroyed all that was green, marched to other fields. It is curious that they dislike clover, seldom assing it at all; but unfortunately, little clover is grown in this part of the State. Unless badly pressed for food they seldem damage the growing wheat and rye. Perbaps at that exacon its grown in the part of the State. Charactery, July, 1861.

Bo little have we traveled this year that we have almost lost the idea of progress and because almost lost the idea of progress and below in the footsteps of old Mr. Fogy, who wates himself with musty columns and supposes his garden boundary to be the outer walk of creation. A few days since, as the iolidiers say, we ordered rations for a week, istermined to see what was doing Bouth of us.

The Richmont correspondent of the Members and engage her, but he would not permit them to do it, which was altogether a wrong decision. Had they done so the Samter would have, in all probability, been captured, and our cankety now in regard to har aerest occurred.

The Ningara made ready for see as soon as possible, and sailed the following morning for the purpose of cruising off the west end of the lisland of Cuba, as far east as Havana, out we liel in with no vessel abswering to her description, and our coal being out, we put in here for a supply. Last night at 10 ollook, a special vessel arrived from Havana, bearing a dispatch from Consul General Statefalt to Capt. McKena, stiting that he had received a telegram from C.D. Fowler, Req. I have heard it from good authority that the Capitain-General has attacd that he will not permit a privateer to enfer, or allow one to be litted out in any port in the Island of Cuba, and I have every reason to believe that he has had the Suntier detained. There is also a report that ab left Cuntagos and entered Triviads, where the authorities have detained for your order of the Capitain-General Licentenant Sunnes, or Stribling Good of Flag Officer Stribling, comminands her, and her crew, it is said, are all Mcxicaus and Crooks, armed to the teeth with bowle knives, pistole, cutlaused of. Her armanent is a good one, consisting of eight black guas, and he is its every way admirably calculated for a good fight. Having a powerful engine, she is also very fact teeming ill and 12 knots easily.

I sm of opinion that the Niagara is going to have the good luck of expluring her somewhere slong the const. On the other hand, if she has left Cubs. her plan, no doubt, is to capture the next California steamer bound north, for we have heard that the redels insengers on board of her, who, as soon as the Sunier heaves in sight, will rise up and assist in Laking the ship. The convoy brig Bahrings can do nothing with the Sunter, as her guess are too short. I would here suggest that until the Sunter is taken the California steamers should be convoyed by a season with an armsment of Siach guas or riled cannon, and that the steamers themselves mount sixeral of these guas, besides providing themselves with small arc temper to repol boarders.

The Patterson-Bonaparte Case.

The Patterson-Bonaparte case is again on trial before the Imperial Court of Para. To this court Mr. Bonapartoauch his mother, Madame Elizabeth Patterson, Bonaparte, have appealed from the decision of the first Chamber of the Tribanal of the Seine of the 15th of February last, denanding a settlement and a share in the property left by the old Prince Jerome. The distinguished M. Berryer, counsel for the plaintiffs, has stated and argued the case for his clients with his usual ability, and the counsel for Prince Napoleon, the defendant, has replied. The case verget towards a decision. I don't know that anybody doubts what that decision will be a she lawful marriage at Ballimore of Miss Patterson with Jerome was set aside and declared null by the arbitrary decree of Napoleon 1, not-withstanding the refusal of the Pope to canul the marriage, so at the present time the Court, yielding to the Imperial will and desire of the family council, will doubtless art the whole case saide. Possession is time points of the law, and how ridications it would be to make any admissions toward legalizing a marriage which would place the present Frimes Mapoleon and his sater the Princes Mailidawhere? In America we should look upon this case as contest between law (or rather arbitrary decree o) and justice. In France one cess things differently.

The America we should look upon this case as a contest between law (or rather arbitrary decree) and justice. In France one cess things differently.

The America we should look upon this case as a contest between the works and ter paying the cests of this expensive law case, of having got the whole besiness well ventilated and presed before the public of France and America. Mr. Bonaparte, the an-

It is not the Comet sometimes mamed after Charles V. This Comet was first observed in 1994, and again in 1856, when it threw off a train of brilliant light one hundred degrees in 'ength. These two Comparison below:

construct two constructions of the control of the south side of the nodes (the points in which the Comets passed from the north to the south side of the plane of the earth's orbit) were almost exactly qual. The longitudes of the perihelion (9) were nearly the same, while the perihelion (9) were nearly the same, while the perihelion distances by were but ittle discrepant in value,

Compare these elements with those of Comet 1, 1861, or Comet II, 1861, and we see that neither of these objects can possibly be the great Comet of 1586.

The best predictions of this Comet fix its return about 1800; but in so great a period of revolution, with an orbit so inclined to the ecliptic as to subject the Comet to great planetary perturbation, it is quite impossible, from observations made nearly three hundred years ago, to make any very near approximation to the time of return to the Sun. We have several years yet, in which, by possibility, we may detect the return of this long expected stranger.

object was quite independent of any connexion with the former Comet.

From observations obtained on the evanings of July 3, 3 and 4, at Cambridge, Messrs. Safford and Hale computed elements, when it was discovered that the orbit of the stranger had an inclination to the ecliptic nearly equal to that of the Thatcher Comet—that the perihelion passage was seven or eight days later than the former, and that the distance of the new object from the sun, when in perihelio, was almost identical with that of the old. From these facts, it has been stated in the public prints, (I know not on what anthority) that these objects were the same, and that the discrepancies between the elements might be reconciled, either by the fact that the Comet had been greatly disturbed by some planet in its approach to the sun, or that the first set of elements were necessarily inaccurate, from the peculiar position in which the Comet was seen at its first appearance.

From observations obtained at the Observatory on the svenings of July 3d, 3th and 7th, Mr. G. W. Hough, Assistant, has computed the following approximate elements of the Cemet now visible:

T—June 11,433d, Washington M. T.

[Ke-249 drg. 69 min.

Log. 2-9. 911,348.

JULY 3. The Comet was observed at its lower cirlmination with the Olcott Meridian Circle.

July 5. The Comet's place was deduced by comparison with "No. 22785; Lalande, July 7. The comparison "was No. 13387; Arg. Zones.

Mr. Hough also computed the following approximate elements of Thatcher's Comet, from Observations made at the Observatory on the evenings of April 10th, 14th and 17th, 1861;

T—June 3,560d.

T—28 deg. 43 min.

Log 9-9 9 913, 48.

Log 9-9 945

A comparison of these two sets of elements will show that the Thatcher Comet is not the object now wisble into the heavens. It is true that the value of T(the time of perhelion passage) differ only some eight days. That the angles of inclination (s) differ less than eight deg.; that the logarithms of the perintelion passage) differ only some eight days. That from the earth, and on the evening of t.

7th July, its distance had become twent seven millions of miles.

We must conclude that the present witor is a stranger, of which we know on such facts as have been obtained since appearance and discovery on the 30th April, 1861.
